HAVE YOU THE RIGHT TIME?

Unless your watch has been thoroughly cleaned and oiled with in eighteen months, it can't be absolutely depended upon.
Tiny particles of grit are bound to work into the movement, and unless removed will serve to grind and cut the delicately adjusted parts.

Our method of cleaning insures thoroughness. The movement is taken apart, each piece is cleaned separately and when you get your watch back, it's in as good condition as when it left the factory.

TRUSTS AND THE PEOPLE

Will Fight a Mighty Battle at Albany Says Leaders of Both Parties at Washington.

Washington, Jan. 3.—Great corporate and political influences will be brought to bear to defeat the radical reforms recommended by Governor Hughes, in his message to the New York legislature. Leaders of both parties here predict that Albany will become the battle ground where the trusts will make a firm stand to defeat the proposed reforms.
President Roosevelt feels that victory for the trusts, at Albany, spells defeat for reforms in other states and although the president is not openly active in aiding Hughes, it is believed he will make it known that he strongly favors the recommendations.

FORAKER EXPECTED TO RENEW ATTACK TODAY

Washington, Jan. 3.—When the senate reconvened today after the holiday recess, nearly every senator was in his seat and the galleries were crowded. Interest was shown in the proceedings because it is the general belief Foraker will renew his attacks on the president because of the Brownsville affair. The house convened at noon and adjourned at 12:10.

Brief Mention

The funeral of John Weber Sr. will be conducted from the home of William Weber at 440 South Windsor street, Friday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock.
Interment will follow in Marion cemtery.

At a well attended meeting of the Sunday School teachers of Salem's Evangelical church held Wednesday night, the regular routine business was transacted and arrangements made for electing officers at a called meeting to be held Friday night.

A suburban resident unfortunately de-fected his neighbor, a doctor, for keeping roving and destructive chickens.
One night the man was taken suddenly ill and, against his wish, had to call in the hated physician.

The doctor prescribed some very powerful pills and warned his patient that as soon as relief was obtained to throw away the medicine, as it endangered the lives of curious and meddling children.

Next morning the physician again called, and the patient exclaimed gratefully, "Doctor, I'm feeling much better and have thrown away the pills."

"Yes, confound you," grunted the doctor sorrowfully, "you threw them out of the window and killed two of my Plymouth Rocks and one prize winning Wyandotte." — Philadelphia Ledger.

The Successful Fight Made on the Trusts

By WILLIAM H. MOODY,
Attorney-General of the United States.

Trusts and monopolies would never have grown to be a menace to the welfare of this country if they had been denied preferential treatment by the railroads.

The railroads said: "There is law enough." We have ceased to give rebates, anyway." The statement was inconsistent, to say the least. After a time I concluded that the railroads were right as to there being law enough and wrong when they declared that rebates had stopped. Subsequent events confirmed my conclusions.

There have been 90 cases brought against railroads, persons and corporations under the interstate commerce law since Mr. Roosevelt became president, 63 of which are under the Elkins act.

Fines amounting to more than $350,000 have been levied, and in two instances sentences of imprisonment were imposed. So far 23 persons and corporations have been convicted.

At my suggestion the law was changed so that the courts might send railroad officers to jail.

However, I do not believe that a money fine is a light or ineffectual method of punishment. But the world takes that view. "What," it asks, "do the officers of a railroad care if they are made to pay $10,000?
They have plenty of money." They care a great deal. Usually, they are conspicuous men in business and society and even the church. They are called into court, convicted of breaking the law, and fined like a culprit before a police magistrate. Don't tell me they are indifferent to such shame and to such a stigma. They wear the brand the rest of their lives and are buried with it. But, even so, a day in jail is better still.
Imprisonment not only makes the penalty more drastic, but it satisfies public opinion, and, better than all, it is a powerful deterrent.

Quality of Woman's Loyalty

By MRS. LEONARD MARSHALL.

Every woman is loyal —to a man! This is not necessarily the man she loves. He may be a friend, a chum, a hero, she worships, an actor, a curate, or a soldier. some peg on which to hang her soul's emotions!
Her prodigal son, loved beyond all others; her scamp of a brother, for many are the girls who have shielded their brothers from paternal anger, and unconsciously aided and abetted them in wrong-doing. A woman's loyalty is a question of sex. When she takes up a political cause, be sure that cause represents a man—a king, maybe, or the chief of a band of robbers, but he is her ideal for the time being. Loyalty to the best beloved is a matter of course.

To the man she loves she will sacrifice everything. Honor, loyalty, truth—she will learn that which is most foreign to her nature—the secret of golden silence, more potent than speech—and become absolutely fearless when danger is nigh. The Russians are clever in having utilized women in all their political movements. They know that women under the guidance of a man will work wonders. From Jeanne d'Arc to Fiona MacDonald we have no dearth of loyal heroines who risked their lives for the men they pinned their faith to and the cause they had at heart.

Garibaldi's wife, and in our own days Lucie Dreyfus, are undying examples of loyalty.

Napoleon's heroines, from Josephine to Bellotie, were all enthralled by a great man's magnetic personality. Goethe's old age was brightened by the spring-like sweetness of the youthful Bettina. It is this very abandon and ardor of self-sacrifice that makes a woman untrue to herself and disloyal to all but one; yet the more lovable withal for her very frailties. Women are, I grieve to state, rarely loyal to each other.

There are cases of devoted feminine friendships, but they represent a truce—an armed neutrality. If a man intervenes, that friendship may turn suddenly to an active hatred, fanned by the fiery breath of jealousy.
A man might give up the woman he loved to his friend, but such a sacrifice would be impossible to a woman. Love absorbs every faculty of her being, blinding her to right and wrong. Not one woman out of 20 will willingly praise another. It is always: "She is pretty, but what a pity she has such a bad figure," or something to that effect.

Illusive Love Should Be Banished

By DR. JULIUS BRINKER,
Professor of Nervous and Mental Diseases, Chicago Post Graduate Medical School.

If the people of America would keep the coming generations from inhabiting mad-houses they should abolish indiscriminate marriages, forget that hallucination called love, and choose their life partners on the same principle that a successful cattleman chooses his stock. Like begets like, and the nervous system bows to the law of all life—the law of heredity; the law that governs your life and mine. If we are bundles of unstable nerves and abnormal sus-ceptibilities it is but little trouble to trace the cause back to our forefathers. The youth of to-day should be educated and compelled to choose his mate in the way that fine horses and cattle are chosen. When a man comes to marrying he should choose his wife in the same way that she chooses a new dress.

Love is a wonderful thing. Is is a hallucination, an illusion provided by nature to cause men and women to mate and to procreate the species. But love should be thrust in the background and relegated to the scrap heap of worn-out adages if the health and security of posterity is to be taken into consideration. Do not have your children afflicted with the evils that have been inflicted upon you. Stop falling in love with a pretty face, and get a wife who is healthy and will rear strong and wholesome children.

If there should be a law passed in this country by which men and women would be compelled to undergo physical examinations and have the physical records of their ancestors investigated before a marriage would be allowed it would be the best thing that could possibly happen.
If it were possible that this law could be passed hundreds of diseases, ailments and ills would be eradicated from the race.

Same Principle, Of Course.
"Great Scott! What's that she's wearing?" exclaimed the bachelor as an up-to-date spring girl boarded the car and sat two seats ahead. "It looks like a—but it can't be," he went on, disjunctively.
"I know it does," explained his married friend, "but it isn't. It's the latest thing to hold up the long gloves. My wife has three pairs, made of elastic ribbon and what not, with bunches of stuff besides. Same principle, of course. They call 'em arm lets.'"

Requires Smartness.
"Jinks is a smart fellow."
"Smart nothing. He just married a millionaire's daughter, that's all."
"That's all? Did you ever try to marry a millionaire's daughter?"— Pittsburg Post.
